13. Read the extract and answer the following questions.

The medieval period was challenging for the life of tribals. The migration of other people including Europeans into the tribal regions was the major challenge. Another reason was that due to the rapid expansion of agriculture and cutting of dense forests, the tribals areas had diminished. Forests were the original homes of most of the tribes. Thus, in many places, the tribals had been uprooted from their original villages and forced into exposure to new cultures. This exposure led to some more changes in their lives and culture.

- i. What were the challenges faced by the tribes during medieval period?
- ii. Give the reasons for the displacement and dislocation of tribals from their original homes.
- iii. What might be the changes adopted by the tribals after they got uprooted from their original homes?
